

Supraventricular Tachycardia (SVT) Care Pathway

Radiofrequency ablation is the standard of care for patients with symptomatic SVT (excluding AF). Care involves a multidisciplinary approach and optimally interventions should be performed in a tertiary centre with availability of all diagnostic and therapeutic tools and skills (in particular transeptal puncture should not be performed outside of a surgical centre). Asymptomatic patients may need to be counselled about risk stratification and occupational consequences of a diagnosis.